

The Crypto-Marxists in Leinster House are Enslaving Our Nation

by Jeremy James

“The wicked shall be turned into hell, and all the nations that forget God.”

– Psalm 9:17

Leinster House, seat of parliament and largest 'Masonic lodge' in Ireland.

Ireland is small. The Republic comprises only 26 counties – just below 27,000 square miles – and has a population of under 5 million. The US state which comes closest to it in geographical size is S Carolina, which also has a population of 5 million.

If S Carolina was run by a Marxist cabal, there is some possibility that a sizeable segment of the population would be aware of it. Alas, our little country has been taken over by socialist sociopaths, but 99 percent of the population is blithely unaware of the fact.

Given the long list of crimes committed by this degenerate clique in recent years, it is difficult to understand this obstinate ignorance. No matter how much damage the government inflicts on them, the people are unable to connect the wanton evisceration of their economy, not to mention the obliteration of their social fabric, with the laws and regulations passed by duplicitous politicians. It simply does not occur to them that their so-called leaders are working for someone else.

UN Agenda 21

I'll share a personal story of an event which helped me understand the awful hold that neo-marxism has over Ireland. About twenty years ago an Assistant Secretary in the Department of Finance, who was shortly thereafter promoted to Secretary General, asked me to help him prepare for an appearance which he was scheduled to make before an Oireachtas Committee. This was not part of my remit but I agreed. He gave me a massive tome prepared by the United Nations which was published in 1992. We know it today as Agenda 21.

As I read through the document I marvelled at its boundless ambition, the way it presumed to specify for decades ahead the lines along which all human activity would evolve. It was not predicting the future, as many believed, but specifying the rules and parameters which would determine how society would be allowed to develop. This was presented in the form of an Action Plan which would ensure that the whole of mankind would benefit from the decades of prosperity and growth that lay ahead while at the same time protecting the environment.

Beneath this benign veneer, however, it reeked of technocratic interference, centralized control, and layers of mandates and regulations which would cripple any nation which took it seriously. Personally I saw it, not as a worldwide Marxist plan which 179 countries would agree to follow, but a fantasy future devised by senior civil servants, economists and technocrats in the UN and elsewhere who had far too much time on their hands. It seemed impossible that any hard-nosed politician would take it seriously, or that any industrialized nation would allow itself to be hog-tied in this fashion.

Control, control, control

Agenda 21 envisaged a future where every sector of industry and human enterprise, everywhere on earth, would be controlled by a small unelected group of experts. All rivers, seas and oceans would be subject to their rules; all agricultural land and forestry would be controlled in the same way. The list went on and on – transport, telecommunications, electricity generation and distribution, shipping, mining, trade, manufacturing, education, infrastructure, housing, etc etc. It gave to this elite group effective ownership and control over all “inventory” and resources on earth – all land, all water, all minerals, all plants, all animals, all food, all construction, all means of production, all energy, and all information.

Under the universal buzzword, ‘sustainable development’, it even claimed for itself the right to specify the limits of all human activity. It was, in effect, a blueprint to control humanity.

It never occurred to me at the time that the people behind this scheme were already running the governments of the world. As a result I mistakenly assumed that this peculiar document, the master plan to take control of the earth and its resources, was little more than a dystopian mirage. All has now changed, of course. Events over the past twenty years have shown that the UN plan has the backing of all national governments, that it is extensively financed by the ultra-rich elite who run the international banking system, and that it is co-ordinated and refined by the same elite who have been using Marxism and international Freemasonry to subvert nations and install hireling regimes on every continent.

The traitors in Leinster House

Most of the men and women – not to mention transgenders – in Leinster House are traitors. They are members of one of the many groups in this worldwide cabal. They despise Christianity and are determined to erase the culture and traditional values which constitute the identity of this small nation. In doing so they are rewarded by their superiors in London and elsewhere. They may even receive a bonus for pulling asunder a nation which, until fairly recently, was both ethnically homogeneous and deeply imbued with a Christian ethos.

In some respects, Ireland is a showcase for the New World Order and a testing ground for techniques in advanced mind control.

Irish politicians working together to create a new Ireland.

Some of the legislative and other changes made in this country over the past ten years are difficult to believe. If the citizens of other countries knew what was happening here, they would fall about laughing, unless, of course, the same abomination had already been foisted on their own people. For example, a married man can write to a government office and ask to have the gender on his birth certificate changed from male to female. He then becomes retrospectively, in law, a female from birth. He can do this without any requirement to produce a medical report or evidence of any kind that would show he is mentally unstable, undergoing hormonal treatment, dressing in female attire, or planning to undergo surgery (See the Gender Recognition Act 2015). Most Irish people do not know that this is the law of the land.

What kind of government would do something like this? Only one that hates Christianity, loathes Biblical values, and supports the program of subversion which the Marxists are pursuing throughout the western world.

Even when they are shown evidence like this, most Irish people are extremely reluctant to believe that their government could be so devious, so deceitful, or so wicked. Their delusion is reinforced by the false belief that such treasonous behavior is impossible under a democracy. It never occurs to them that all of the candidates put forward for election by the main political parties are selected and approved in advance by the party leadership. Under these circumstances, it is possible, not only to appoint a Marxist government, but to ensure that no serious opposition of any kind can take root in Dáil Eireann.

The We Rule Ireland Party

As we have said in previous papers, Ireland has only one political party, the 'We Rule Ireland Party' with its various branches (FF, FG, SF, Labour, etc). Leinster House is little more than a Masonic lodge where members of 'royal' Irish bloodlines gather for a few days a week to make laws which ensure the common people of Ireland are kept in their place and powerful people behind the scenes can continue to fleece a gullible, dumbed-down population.

In our earlier paper, Hate Speech Legislation: Censorship by Stealth (#209), we presented a submission which we made to the Department of Justice, dated November 10, 2019, on the proposed hate crime legislation. The general scheme of the Bill was published a few weeks ago and we can now confirm that the proposed legislation will be as radical as we predicted 18 months ago (General Scheme: Criminal Justice (Hate Crime) Bill 2021).

Submission to the Department of Justice,
November 2019 – see Appendix A attached.

Since the observations made in our earlier paper are still relevant, we will not go over the same ground again. Instead we recommend that the reader examine the earlier paper, either at this point – see copy in Appendix A – or after completing this update.

We would also recommend a searching analysis by John Waters in his two-part paper, The Speech Haters, which may be found at <https://johnwaters.substack.com/p/the-speech-haters>. An impassioned patriot, Mr Waters reveals in stark terms the ghastly implications for free speech in Ireland if this Bill is allowed to pass into law. It will prevent, for example, any meaningful attempt by concerned citizens, either individually or in groups, to oppose further draconian measures, legislative or otherwise, to remove the freedoms we have left.

The main provisions in the proposed legislation

In this section we will summarize the main provisions of the proposed legislation which relate to individuals (as opposed to corporate entities).

We will give first, in our own words, a brief summary of what the Bill is designed to do. Without this summary the reader may have difficulty interpreting the official text which, frankly, is so bizarre that any sane person reading it for the first time might think it was joke.

Our summary: Any person, upon hearing or reading a remark by you, may decide that he is offended and that your remark was motivated by hatred. His perception of what you wrote or said must be construed by the police as factual evidence and that, despite any protestations by you to the contrary, you have committed an offence. It will not be necessary for the accuser to prove in court that any harm was caused by your remark. The court hearing will be convened merely to assess the gravity of the offence and, upon conviction, to pass sentence. Since the Bill provides no basis for a defence, or objective grounds to refute the accusation, conviction is inevitable. The penalty is a substantial fine or imprisonment for up to 5 years.

As we will now show, we have not exaggerated any aspect of this deplorable scenario. Here is how the official scheme of the Bill defines the proposed new law:

There are two types of offence under the Bill. The first we will call Offence Type 1:

“A person is guilty of an offence who communicates to the public or a section of the public by any means, for the purpose of inciting, or being reckless as to whether such communication will incite, hatred against another person or group of people due to their real or perceived association with a protected characteristic.” [Maximum sentence: 5 years in prison.]

A protected characteristic is one pertaining to race, colour, nationality, ethnicity, religion, sexual orientation, gender, or disability. The term “religion” includes “the absence of religious belief” [We will return to this later!]

The second type of offence under the Bill (Offence Type 2) is committed by someone who publishes details of the remark made by someone who is charged with Offence Type 1. [Maximum sentence: 2 years in prison.]

It is a defence, in relation to Offence Type 2 only, to claim that the action constituted “a reasonable and genuine contribution to literary, artistic, political, scientific, or academic discourse.” In doing so the defendant must establish to the satisfaction of the court that he was “unaware and had no reason to suspect that the communication concerned was intended or likely, in all the circumstances including the manner in which they either obtained or disseminated it, to stir up hatred.”

As noted, this defence applies only to Offence Type 2. The scheme states that “...there is no exception where the person communicating is deliberately or recklessly inciting hatred” (Offence Type 1).

The individual is deemed guilty of either offence “whether or not any actual instance of harm or unlawful discrimination is shown to have occurred, or to have been likely to occur, as a result.” The Department of Justice commented as follows on this provision:

Paragraph (7) is designed to ensure a person can still be found guilty of incitement to hatred even if no imminent harm to any other actual person occurred as a result of their actions. This is designed to cover situations where, for example, those present are sympathetic to the victim, rather than siding with the perpetrator. The offence of incitement to hatred is composed of the mental element (intent or recklessness) and the act (communicating with the public or a section thereof) and does not require any actual consequences as a result of that act in order for the person to be guilty.

Offence Type 1 and Offence Type 2 are “new offences of incitement to hatred.” They replace the offences in the 1989 Prohibition of Incitement to Hatred Act which is being repealed by this Bill.

It is unthinkable that something like this could be attempted in a modern democracy. The politicians are advancing beyond the Covid mask as a tool of social control and introducing – for critics of government policy – a tight-fitting muzzle. No one will dare open their mouth under such a regime, where an innocent, inoffensive remark could be construed as a hate crime punishable by five years in prison or a fine of €5000 – or both. Outspoken Christians and other concerned persons will be hauled away for daring to question the authority of the state. Once this Bill becomes law, the government will be able to trample roughshod over any group they choose, secure in the knowledge that no-one will dare speak out against them.

The so-called ‘protected characteristics’

The “protected characteristics” are so broad – race, colour, nationality, ethnicity, religion, sexual orientation, gender, or disability – that it will be possible to construe virtually any remark about human rights or Christian values as a personal attack, a so-called hate crime under one or more of these categories. Even if the police officer who receives the complaint is convinced that the charge is without substance, with no objective validity, he or she is still obliged under the Act to treat it de jure as a hate crime because the “victim” perceived it as such.

In order to drive home the vindictive character of the Bill and its radical purpose, the scheme defines the term “religion” to include “the absence of religious belief.” This means, for example, that a public reference to God as the Creator may be “perceived” by an atheist as a hate crime within the meaning of the Act, a charge against which the accused party will have no defence.

We would urge the reader to dwell a moment on this provision since, on first inspection, and in view of its blatant absurdity, it would seem inconceivable that it meant what it said.

These flags are the only ones flying outside the offices of Wicklow County Council in the town of Greystones.

The one on the left celebrates sodomy and sexual perversion, while the one on the right honors gender confusion and genital mutilation.

Our Marxist government is strongly promoting the ‘New Morality’ while, at the same time, making it more and more difficult to preach and proclaim Biblical values. The Criminal Justice (Hate Crime) Bill 2021 is steeped in the spirit of Antichrist.

The cynical evisceration of our democracy

This brutal piece of legislation may possibly be the most draconian ever contemplated by a modern democracy. It underscores a view which we have already expressed in previous papers, namely, that Ireland is being used as a testing ground for some of the most egregious, divisive and restrictive measures which the international Elite intend to implement across the world as a whole.

The anthology, Orwell on Freedom, gives a succinct summation of the vista before us: “No one can get up much enthusiasm for a Government which puts you in jail if you open your mouth.”

People who cannot express their opinions, however well-founded, will end up censoring the very thoughts which formulated those opinions in the first place. Orwell again hit the nail of the head when (in the same anthology) he said, “The fallacy is to believe that under a dictatorial government you can be free inside.”

The people of Ireland are being hammered into the ground by a thinly disguised Marxist regime. Many of our businesses have been forced to shut down because of the ridiculous Covid scare. People have been locked in their homes for a longer period, in aggregate, than that of any other country on earth (except, perhaps, North Korea). The population has been subjected to such a protracted degree of state-sponsored psychological torture that many old people dare not leave their homes (even when “allowed” to do so by the state) lest they die, and all highschool students are obliged to wear a fetid face mask for up to six hours a day. Schools and churches have been shut for months on end, and the government has the audacity to decide which goods in the supermarket are essential and which are not – what has that got to do with one’s health! And morning, noon and night it broadcasts baleful warnings of impending doom if a group of young people should sit together in a public park, meet for a social drink, or – heaven forbid – stand next to one another and engage in friendly banter.

The Luciferian cult which rules from behind the scenes

Only devotees of Satan could preside over such an infernal state of affairs. Their every action stinks of contempt for humanity. They now plan to pass legislation which will silence forever any expression of dissent, any vague mutterings of discontent, or any possibility that like-minded people might come together at some stage to undo the demonic noose which these Christ-hating liars have placed around the necks of the Irish people.

We should note in passing their ongoing attempts to legalize euthanasia. This too is part and parcel of the darkness that controls these people. To Freemasons and Marxists mass murder is a form of initiation, a way of inaugurating a new phase in human evolution. They believe that, in order to be successful, their new world order must be energized by mass fatalities and bloodshed.

We should note also the huge influx of foreign nationals into our country. This too is part of the deliberate attempt to break up traditional Irish society and reconstitute it using foreign blood, foreign culture, non-Christian religions, and the New Morality. The heritage of our children is being taken from them. All that our parents and grandparents worked so hard to build up and bequeath to us for our benefit is now being handed to the New World Order.

How much evidence do the men and women of Ireland require before they recognize that their government is working to destroy our country? How long will it take before they see that their supposed leaders are traitors working for international Marxism and the vile cult of Freemasonry? How much damage must be inflicted on our elderly, our children, our economy, our businesses, our social fabric, our health services, our educational system, our churches, and our cultural activities before this spiritually depleted nation comes to its senses?

A troop of meerkats would do more to defend their young and their territory than the people of Ireland are doing to defend theirs. The snakes – “the godless vipers” – in Leinster House must be laughing to scorn the imbeciles (as they see them) who bow down before them and await their fate.

Understanding the wicked

It is vital that we understand the kind of people we are dealing with. There was a time when we could have said, ‘Oh, these are just a more pernicious variety of the liars and blackguards who for decades have exploited the Irish people.’ But, as bad as that might be, the true situation is much worse.

To understand what is really happening we need to take stock of the wider spiritual context in which all of this is unfolding. The Word of God spells it out very clearly:

“For we wrestle not against flesh and blood, but against principalities, against powers, against the rulers of the darkness of this world, against spiritual wickedness in high places.” (Ephesians 6:12)

The energy which is driving world Communism and Freemasonry is demonic. It’s really that simple. The higher levels of Freemasonry, just like those of Kabbalah, are concerned with the nature and operation of the supernatural. Its practitioners seek more of “the light” but the light they seek is the light of Lucifer, the so-called Light Bearer. This is the false light that Christ condemned when he said:

“If therefore the light that is in thee be darkness, how great is that darkness!”
(Matthew 6:23).

The Book of Job referred to this false light when it said:

“Yea, the light of the wicked shall be put out, and the spark of his fire shall not shine... He shall be driven from light into darkness, and chased out of the world... Surely such are the dwellings of the wicked, and this is the place of him that knoweth not God.” (Job 18)

As far as this earth is concerned, the same may be said of Leinster House: Surely...this is the place of him that knoweth not God.

The men, women and transgenders in that godforsaken hole take perverse pleasure in overturning all that is normal and natural. Consider, for example, the Provision of Objective Sex Education Bill which is currently at its Third Stage in the Dáil. It seeks to foist upon little children the perverted imagery and twisted fantasies that occupy the minds of our socialist leaders. Only a person who really hates Christianity would want to expose a pre-teen child to the demented world of sodomy or to normalize the acute emotional confusion known as LGBT.

The dark energy that blights the minds of these people is rooted in the hatred that Satan has for all mankind. From it flows the “spiritual wickedness” that the Apostle Paul was describing.

Using the powers conferred by this Bill, the government is planning to introduce in our schools a module dealing with gender identity – for children aged between 5 and 7! Here is an extract from the draft curriculum:

Gender Identity

Junior and Senior Infants

This resource will help you:

- teach about individuality
- discuss how people can feel different on the inside to how we see them
- encourage students to be true to themselves

Key themes:

- feeling different
- not conforming to the expectations of others
- finding your true self

Diversity focus:

- can be used as a metaphor for transgender people

"My Princess Boy"
by Cheryl Kilodavis

Why use this resource sheet and book?

Using this book and sheet will stimulate discussion around people being different and encouraging children to be accepting of difference.

It will allow children to develop their own understanding by asking questions and challenging their own concepts and ideas around identity and expression.

It can be used to introduce the concept of transgender people and show the issues they experience in trying to be what they are not and the happiness they feel in living life as their true selves.

The module will include the book, My Princess Boy by Cheryl Kilodavis, which was published in 2011. It will be used to introduce innocent children to the troubled world of transgender confusion. In doing so the aim, very obviously, is to get the child – aged between 5 and 7 – to question his or her gender identity. When it comes to wanton acts of destruction, where the perpetrator remains far from the scene of his crime, this is difficult to beat.

The book includes several blatantly subversive images like the following:

We give this example of harmful sexual indoctrination to reveal the twisted minds of our so-called leaders and, specifically, their determination to harm our children and undermine the spiritual and ethical values which nourish and sustain our society.

We need to recognize also, not simply that they have corrupt minds, but that their corrupt minds are working in accordance with a plan and that this plan – which is currently being implemented – will turn Ireland into a godless, multi-racial totalitarian state, where a tiny elite caste will own and control just about everything of value.

These wicked individuals would do well to reflect on the fate decreed for them in the Word of God:

“Knowest thou not this of old, since man was placed upon earth, that the triumphing of the wicked is short, and the joy of the hypocrite but for a moment? Though his excellency mount up to the heavens... yet he shall perish forever like his own dung:”

(Job 20:4-7)

It is incredible to think that any group of rational individuals could conspire together in this way against their own people and not expect to face the consequences! In their arrogance they imagine they are indestructible, that they can make whatever laws they please and not be held to account at some future date. They need to be reminded that, unless they repent and mend their ways, they will perish forever like their own dung.

They are now indulging in a brand of wickedness equal to that of tyrants past. Even though they are perfectly aware that the new Covid ‘vaccines’ – genetic serums – are wildly unpredictable in their effects and have been causing a large number of severe adverse reactions in many countries across the world, they continue to coerce the Irish public into believing they are safe and effective. The level of intimidation grows daily as they cajole their unthinking victims into allowing this untested Jekyll & Hyde formulation to be injected into their bloodstream.

Despite repeated warnings by respected medical professionals, which show beyond all doubt that these so-called vaccines are dangerous, the politicians in Leinster House are careful to say nothing but “nice things” about them. The treachery behind this is without parallel in Irish history. We no longer have the parties of old, but an all-party ‘New Morality’ cabal consisting of crypto-Marxists and Freemasons who will not be satisfied until our country is sliced, diced and packaged for consumption by the New World Order. And if this necessitates the widescale poisoning of our population with bogus vaccines – in line with international practice – then so be it.

The government has not made available any figures on the numbers to date who have been harmed by these ‘vaccines’. They are aided and abetted in this vile deception by senior public servants, fellow conspirators in this treacherous enterprise. The health service organizations which should be tracking these statistics assiduously and giving regular updates to the public are not releasing ANY information about adverse effects! Many senior managers in the HSE, HIQA and the HPRA have blood on their hands, as have many senior civil servants in the Departments of Health, Justice and Finance.

They imagine somehow that they will never be held to account. To these we say: “Be not deceived; God is not mocked: for whatsoever a man soweth, that shall he also reap.” (Galatians 6:7).

CONCLUSION

Time is rapidly running out. It may not be long before any public criticism of the government will be punishable in some manner. The Criminal Justice (Hate Crime) Bill will be used as a brutal tool of oppression, where decent men and women will be hauled off to the courts, and possibly to prison, for daring to ask fundamental questions about the treatment of our people. Our subversive 'leaders' will send their toadies to harass selected targets and bring phony 'hate crime' charges against them. They will "perceive" whatever offence meets their fancy and work from there. They will even enter our churches and accuse pastors and priests of stirring up hatred.

How many of our churches will be forced to close when faced with this torrent of government-approved abuse?

Make no mistake, this 'Hate Crime Bill' is a Marxist weapon, a hammer designed to pulverize and destroy Christianity in Ireland.

Submission to the Department of Justice, Equality & Law Reform on the proposed new hate crime legislation.

Hate Speech Legislation: Censorship by Stealth

Irish politician turns sodomy into gold.

For many decades Ireland has operated an effective brand of censorship through its oppressive laws on libel and slander. These were designed to shield the conduct of the rich and powerful from fair and warranted comment. Countless politicians, whose knavery was common knowledge, would swiftly silence their critics with the threat of a defamation suit. The coterie of privileged insiders could then dance a merry dance around the plain people of Ireland, secure in the knowledge that no-one could afford to challenge or expose their underhanded schemes.

A culture of silence

Censorship of this kind has existed in Ireland from the foundation of the state. Journalists and writers who stepped out of line were invariably shunned by their peers. Everyone stepped back just far enough to ensure that the axe, when it fell, left them untouched. This has continued into the 21st century, to the point where we have today a culture of silence. Any remaining checks on the excesses of the political caste have almost completely evaporated.

The ‘ruling elite’, if we may use this term, have now taken complete control of the media. Hand-picked journalists do whatever their paymasters decree, adding whatever spin and coloration is needed to make their message sound relevant and palatable.

In parallel with the subversion of journalism, we have witnessed in this country, over the past 20-25 years, the largescale replacement of the traditional political caste – venal but local – with a cadre of Internationalists, chosen by the ruling elite to impose on the people of Ireland the new morality and globalist ideology promoted by the United Nations.

All Irish political parties are Marxist/Socialist

Several of the main political parties are openly socialist, with a strong Marxist pedigree – Sinn Féin, Labour, Solidarity, Independents4Change, Social Democrats – and thus ardent promoters of the ultra-liberal agenda. Between them they hold about 37 seats in the Dáil (22%). However, unknown to the general public, the other two main parties – Fine Gael and Fianna Fáil – are equally ardent supporters of the same liberal agenda. Between them they hold 91 seats (55%). Ironically, they like to describe themselves as ‘conservative’ and ‘centrist’ in their respective ideologies, but in practice they have entirely abandoned the values espoused by the older generation of Irish voters.

Some of the architects of the New Morality.

The two largest parties are, in reality, crypto-Marxist. While pretending to maintain a connection with the values and traditions of the past, they are implementing a radical new morality which completely rejects the one previously enshrined in Irish law and embodied in the Constitution. Little of what they are doing is being openly discussed in the media. There has been virtually no public exploration of the changes being imposed or their implications for our society. No consensus has emerged regarding any part of its liberal agenda. To the extent that the government has engaged in a formal consultative process, for example in relation to abortion and sex education, it has been carefully framed to limit the influence of dissenting voices and to magnify the role of minority interests.

The Government's radical anti-family, anti-Christian agenda

The table of changes (overleaf) being implemented in Ireland highlights the anti-family, anti-Christian character of our anti-Irish government. For readers who are unfamiliar with Marxist ideology we include on the following page (p.5) a list of some of the goals of Communism which were read into the record on the US Congress in 1963. The Government's plan to overturn the traditional moral order in Ireland and replace it with the secular, humanistic 'morality' of the United Nations – the New Morality – is very similar to the Marxist agenda. Consider the following:

“Get control of the schools. Put the party line in textbooks. Break down cultural standards of morality by promoting pornography and obscenity in books, magazines, motion pictures, radio, and TV. Present homosexuality, degeneracy and promiscuity as "normal, natural, healthy." Discredit the Bible. Dominate the psychiatric profession and use mental health laws as a means of gaining coercive control over those who oppose Communist goals. Discredit the family as an institution. Encourage promiscuity and easy divorce. Emphasize the need to raise children away from the negative influence of parents.”

– from the goals of Communism (see p.5)

| The Irish Marxist, Irish Government Agenda | | | |
|--|--|---|---|
| Year | Change or proposal | Target | Openly examined? |
| 2012 | Referendum to amend the Constitution to enable the state to take children from their parents. | The family. Vulnerable youths. | Heavily biased state propaganda. |
| 2015 | Referendum to amend the Constitution to enable homosexuals to 'marry'. | The family. Natural marriage. Normal sexuality. | Heavily biased state propaganda. |
| 2015 | Law enacted to recognize gender change from birth. | The family. Normal sexuality. Vulnerable youths. | Enacted under the radar. Virtually a secretly enacted statute. |
| 2017 | Dept of Health 'general scheme of Bill' proposes the creation of a new form of parent, the so-called 'intending parent'. | The family. The rights of natural mothers. Children born to these mothers. | Not being discussed or disclosed. |
| 2018 | Referendum to amend the Constitution to allow abortion on demand. | The family. Vulnerable mothers. Unborn children. | Heavily biased state propaganda. |
| 2018 | Bill brought before Dáil to introduce 'objective' sex education. | The family. Vulnerable youths. Normal sexuality. Normal child development. | Joint Committee engage in heavily biased 'consultative' process. |
| 2018 | Bill brought before Dáil to outlaw gender conversion therapy. | The family. Vulnerable youths. | Sponsored by Sinn Féin but endorsed by all parties. |
| 2018 | Ireland ratifies the UN Migration Compact under which all migrants will have refugee status. | Genetic and cultural homogeneity of Irish society. Social stability. Property rights. | Not being discussed. Those who raise questions are being subjected to 'hate speech' by government. |
| 2019 | Minister for Health states his intention to make vaccines mandatory for all children. | The family. All youths. | Not being discussed. Those who raise questions are being subjected to 'hate speech' by government. |
| 2019 | Minister for Health states his intention to make 'objective' sex education mandatory for all children. | The family. All youths. | Not being discussed. Those who raise questions are being subjected to 'hate speech' by government. |

Proof that what the Irish Government is doing to our children is all part of the Marxist plan to take control of society.

U.S. Congressional Record – Appendix, pp. A34-A35
January 10, 1963

Congressman A.S. Herlong read the 45 goals of Communism into the record of the House of Representatives. We reproduce 8 of these below. Note how closely they match the goals being pursued by the current Irish government! The attack on the family, parental autonomy, traditional morality, the Bible, and religion are all plain to see, as are the co-option of the teachers' unions and the psychiatric profession:

17. Get control of the schools. Use them as transmission belts for socialism and current Communist propaganda. Soften the curriculum. Get control of teachers' associations. Put the party line in textbooks.

24. Eliminate all laws governing obscenity by calling them "censorship" and a violation of free speech and free press.

25. Break down cultural standards of morality by promoting pornography and obscenity in books, magazines, motion pictures, radio, and TV.

26. Present homosexuality, degeneracy and promiscuity as "normal, natural, healthy."

27. Infiltrate the churches and replace revealed religion with "social" religion. Discredit the Bible and emphasize the need for intellectual maturity which does not need a "religious crutch."

39. Dominate the psychiatric profession and use mental health laws as a means of gaining coercive control over those who oppose Communist goals.

40. Discredit the family as an institution. Encourage promiscuity and easy divorce.

41. Emphasize the need to raise children away from the negative influence of parents. Attribute prejudices, mental blocks and retarding of children to suppressive influence of parents.

Our government is doing exactly what the Marxists have been advocating! They are presenting homosexuality, degeneracy and promiscuity as normal natural and healthy, they are promoting pornography among school children, breaking down “cultural standards of morality” (i.e. Christian standards), attacking the Bible, and discrediting the family as an institution.

There was a time when all Marxists wore a ‘Marxist’ badge, but not anymore. Today a great deal is being achieved, both in Ireland and in other countries, by pretending to be a conservative and then going ahead and implementing the same Marxist agenda. These crypto-Marxists are far more dangerous than the card-carrying type.

The Government’s programme of Moral Subversion

Implementation of the Government’s program of moral subversion is ongoing. One of its main goals at this time is the imposition of ‘objective’ sex education in schools at both primary and secondary level. The relevant Bill was sponsored by the radical Marxist party, Solidarity, in early 2018. In our submission to the NCCA (22 October 2019) we set out in detail the reasons why that Bill will do immense damage to the children of Ireland, to their families, and to the spiritual and emotional well-being of future generations. If the journalists of Ireland are working hand in hand with the Marxist regime which currently controls this country – concealing the sinister nature of what the regime is doing and defaming anyone who tries to expose it – then it is not difficult to understand how the Irish public has been duped, misinformed and deceived by their political leaders. Since efforts are now under way to expose this programme by other means – primarily via the Internet – the regime needs some way of suppressing this emerging avenue of debate.

The Irish Marxist cabal

The purpose of the proposed new law is CENSORSHIP

The EU is currently finalizing a Directive on Internet censorship which will enable Member States to shut down websites carrying material which individual governments deem 'offensive' or 'inappropriate.' This will greatly assist the Irish government in its planned suppression of online dissent, but it will still leave open other avenues of expression. For example, pamphleteers could easily become a common sight outside our train stations or shopping centres and protest groups might in future congregate with greater frequency in high-profile locations. Candidates may even contest local and national elections who are familiar with the Marxist agenda and are determined to expose it. This is something the ruling regime will not tolerate.

In light of this, we can see why the proposed revision of the Prohibition of Incitement to Hatred Act is so important to them. The sense of urgency can even be seen in their Public Consultation document:

"Improvements in our hate-speech legislation are one element in a wider suite of measures across all areas of Government which are designed to address hatred and intolerance...where expressions of hatred and prejudice are not tolerated, and are dealt with swiftly and effectively where they occur."

The target, of course, is "hate-speech" which, if the government has its way, will embrace any adverse opinion, critique, or expression of concern about the New Morality.

The regime is anxious to ensure that all such utterances “are dealt with swiftly and effectively.” The proposed new legislation will also vastly increase the number of potential complainants who may invoke this new mode of censorship. While the 1989 Act is concerned primarily (and has been so interpreted in practice) to relate to ‘hate’ material directed at a group rather than an individual, the new Act is intended to be more specific. Given the views expressed by politicians and lobby groups, it is clear that the purpose of the proposed new Act is to enable the Gardai to pursue a complaint made by any individual who perceives that the public expression of an adverse opinion of a general nature applies to and affects him or her personally.

A deliberate attempt is being made to connect the ‘hate’ in ‘hate speech’ with the ‘hate’ in ‘hate crime’. Remember, the activity that constitutes a hate crime is already an offence even if the ‘hate’ component cannot be established in a court of law. This differs from ‘hate speech’ where the ‘hate’ component must be established before any offence has been committed. The government is pursuing a strategy which will dilute, if not remove, this important distinction. The Public Consultation document actually admits that this is likely to happen when it states: “However, the Department recognises that although hate speech and hate crime are legally distinct, the real-world experiences of hate crime and hate speech are often very closely linked.”

"Shall the throne of iniquity have fellowship with thee, which frameth mischief by a law?
They gather themselves together against the soul of the righteous, and condemn the innocent blood."

– Psalm 94:20-21

State-sponsored victimisation of innocent people

The new legislation, for example, will make it possible for any homosexual person to complain to the Gardai about public remarks of a general nature which are critical of the homosexual lifestyle. The Gardai will be obliged to investigate the complaint and, if it is determined that such remarks were made and that the complainant was offended, to arraign the accused before the court.

This is quite incredible. The Act will effectively impose a blanket prohibition on all comments in the public domain which are critical of state policy under a range of headings. This is not just an egregious attack on free speech but a gross violation of the civil liberties that have existed in this country for generations.

If the new legislation carries the same penalties as the 1989 Act, it will be on a par with the penalties imposed by East Germany for similar ‘offences’ during the Cold War.

The Act currently provides for the following:

- (a) on summary conviction, a fine not exceeding £1,000 or imprisonment for a term not exceeding 6 months or both, or
- (b) on conviction on indictment, a fine not exceeding £10,000 or imprisonment for a term not exceeding 2 years or both.

So, a person who is brought before the court for an offence under the Act, as revised, will presumably have to pay a significant fine if found guilty. He might even be imprisoned. He may only have stated, on a website, blog, or Facebook page, that “the homosexual lifestyle is doing serious harm to our young people”, and yet for expressing this opinion (whether well-founded or not), he is classed as a criminal.

This is simply unbelievable. The regime behind this appalling abuse of power is revealing its true Marxist credentials. Journalistic reporting and public discourse in Ireland are already mired in a sewer of Communist propaganda, but now the regime is going a step further and using Communist methods of control and oppression to enforce their ideology. They are even introducing, under this proposed legislation, a Stasi-style system of surveillance where disaffected citizens will be able spy on their neighbours and report them to the police.

“...the LORD shall reward the doer of evil according to his wickedness.” – 2 Samuel 3:39

A boon for leftist radicals and Christ-hating humanists

The proposed law will also provide a licence to leftist radicals and anti-Christian groups to assail and harass innocent people, bringing charges against them for no purpose other than to blight their lives and attack their religious beliefs. No doubt the Soros-funded thugs who are currently employed to disrupt peaceful demonstrations will also be given the filthy task of wielding this Act to attack the character and good name of anyone who dares to criticize the regime.

“...all that watch for iniquity are cut off: That make a man an offender for a word, and lay a snare for him that reproveth in the gate, and turn aside the just for a thing of nought.”

– Isaiah 29:20-21

This is how a totalitarian state operates. The proposed legislation has nothing whatever to do with protecting minorities from abuse. Existing statutes already provide ample protection. It is doubtful whether the Act of 1989 was even necessary since Irish law already embodied a robust protective framework for minorities and vulnerable people.

Examples of fair comment which could land one in jail

The proposed new legislation is a cynical attack on freedom of speech and civil liberties, a powerful weapon to be turned on anyone who dares to question the New Morality. Here is a sample of the fair and honest opinions which, if voiced repeatedly in a public forum, could land one in prison:

1. "The New Morality is unnatural, harmful and degenerate. It has been designed to undermine the fabric of Irish society and facilitate the introduction of a 'new world order.' It is hostile to Christianity and contemptuous of the Bible and traditional biblical values."
2. "The New Morality is unnatural, harmful and degenerate. There are only two genders, male and female. It is impossible to change one's gender since it is permanently fixed at birth. Anyone who believes they have changed their gender are deluded. They have been deceived by the state and by the psychiatric profession."
3. "The New Morality is unnatural, harmful and degenerate. The Gender Recognition Act of 2015 is complete nonsense. It is nothing but a Marxist perversion of the natural moral order, intended by its sponsors to destroy the fabric of Irish society and cause harm to our children."
4. "The New Morality is unnatural, harmful and degenerate. The mutilation of a boy to turn him into a 'girl', including the use of hormones to delay the onset of puberty or to feminize his appearance, is a gross violation of his bodily integrity. Those responsible should face criminal prosecution."
5. "The New Morality is unnatural, harmful and degenerate. Marriage is a spiritual and physical union between a man and a woman. It is impossible for two people of the same sex to marry. The very idea is absurd."
6. "The New Morality is unnatural, harmful and degenerate. Any society that recognizes homosexual 'marriage' has destroyed the concept of marriage and replaced it with an artefact which has no meaning in the eyes of God."
7. "The New Morality is unnatural, harmful and degenerate. Homosexuality or the so-called homosexual lifestyle is harmful to those who indulge in it, causing a whole range of problems for the individual – physical, emotional, mental and spiritual. It offers only a sad and lonely existence, often resulting in self-harm, drug abuse, and premature death."

8. "The New Morality is unnatural, harmful and degenerate. The termination of the life of an unborn child for social or economic reasons is murder. Both the mother and the clinician who carries out the 'procedure' are guilty of committing a serious crime."

9. "The New Morality is unnatural, harmful and degenerate. An unborn child is a person, a human being with an absolute and inviolable right to life. Laws which diminish or remove that right have no moral basis and should be strenuously opposed by all right-thinking people."

10. "The New Morality is unnatural, harmful and degenerate. Parents are of two kinds, natural and adoptive. It is impossible for a man to claim parental rights of any kind over an unborn child to which he has no genetic connection. The notion of 'intending parent' is complete nonsense, a gross violation of the natural order and a serious breach of the rights of the natural mother (even if the child she is carrying is not genetically related to her), as well as the rights of her husband."

11. "The New Morality is unnatural, harmful and degenerate. No child can cease to be the legal son (or legal daughter) of his (or her) birth parents other than through adoption with the consent of both parents. The notion that the state has the right to sever that link, against the wishes of either parent, is a grotesque abuse of their civil rights and an affront to the natural order established by God."

12. "The New Morality is unnatural, harmful and degenerate. The fiction known as 'objective' sex education is a dangerous Marxist invention, designed to cause emotional and developmental damage to young children by exposing them prematurely to sexually explicit or sexually charged material."

13. "The New Morality is unnatural, harmful and degenerate. Children should not be taught that sexual deviancy is normal in any respect, or that homosexuals can marry, or that gender is a choice. No child should ever be made to question whether or not he or she may have been born in the "wrong" body."

14. “The New Morality is unnatural, harmful and degenerate. Marxists want to legalize abnormal and unnatural sexual behaviour in order to undermine society. For this reason they want to make it illegal to counsel a person to abandon the vice of sodomy.”

15. “The New Morality is unnatural, harmful and degenerate. The fiction known as ‘objective’ sex education is intended to sexualize children and make them more vulnerable to sexual exploitation. This will greatly benefit the pornography industry and Ireland’s expanding network of pedophiles.”

16. “The New Morality is unnatural, harmful and degenerate. Women who adopt a lesbian lifestyle are far more susceptible to emotional disorders, including depression and alcoholism, than the average woman. Self-harm and acute loneliness are commonly reported among lesbians. Many end their lives tragically.”

17. “The New Morality is unnatural, harmful and degenerate. Drag Queen Story Hour is nothing less than the deliberate grooming of little children for later exploitation by pedophiles.”

18. “The Irish people alone – not venal politicians or the U.N. – should decide, through public discussion and consensus, the number of immigrants entering the country annually, having regard to the factors deemed by them to be relevant to immigration policy and the protection of our social fabric. No public funds should be made available to immigrants for any purpose. Ireland should withdraw from the UN Migration Compact. Ideally the foreign-born population of this country should not exceed 5 percent.”

None of these statements are intended to stir up hatred and cannot reasonably be construed to be either threatening or offensive. However, radical proponents of the New Morality will almost certainly use the proposed legislation to claim that they are “hate speech” within the meaning of the Act. A court may even decide that, while no statement by itself is offensive, collectively they express an animosity which is tantamount to “hate speech”, especially if they are repeated. For example, a person handing out a pamphlet listing all of these statements would likely be prosecuted under the proposed legislation.

Laws by fiat

The Garda Commissioner recently released a working definition of a “hate crime” which leaves one in no doubt that this is precisely what is intended:

“Any criminal offence which is perceived by the victim or any other person to, in whole or in part, be motivated by hostility or prejudice, based on actual or perceived age, disability, race, colour, nationality, ethnicity, religion, sexual orientation or gender.”

[This definition may be found on the Garda website, www.garda.ie]

Since when has the Garda Commissioner acquired the right to define a hate crime? After all, Ireland is not yet a police state. It says a lot about the arrogance of the ruling elite in this country that, even before they impose a draconian law, they go ahead and implement it on a provisional basis.

This working definition has also been promoted by the European Commission against Racism and Intolerance (ECRI) [The ECRI is an ‘independent’ human rights monitoring body set up by the Council of Europe in 1993.] Given that the regime in Ireland is following the strategy set by its counterparts in Europe, we can be certain that this absurd “working definition” will find its way into the proposed legislation.

Hearsay, rumour and imaginary evidence

Note the words “perceived by the victim” in the Garda Commissioner’s definition. Any remaining objectivity is simply thrown out the window. Perceived offences are entirely subjective and, in a normal world, would have no more validity in a court of law than hearsay or rumour.

The so-called victim is given the right to decide how much hatred he or she experienced and thus the magnitude of the alleged offence. This would be comical if it did not have such grave implications for an innocent person. It is a gross perversion of natural justice (a) to describe a crime entirely in subjective terms and (b) to go even further and assign this privilege to the alleged victim. In addition to the problems that this will cause for a court of law when reviewing the facts of the case, it will virtually compel a Garda to accept the version of events described by the alleged victim and, in consequence, to refer the matter to a court of law.

To make matters worse, the accused will have little or no grounds on which to mount a defence or to challenge the account given by the alleged victim. Vexatious complaints, designed only to harm the good name of the accused, will be given legitimacy by the court.

Note also the words, “or any other person”. It is clearly the intention to enable a third party, possibly someone who does not even know the ‘victim’, to press charges on his or her behalf. This will facilitate bogus claims by radical groups and virtually anyone who has a grudge against the accused or his religious beliefs.

Yes, this is how a modern totalitarian state suppresses free speech, targets dissenting voices, and victimizes those who dare to expose its Marxist agenda. It enables radical groups to bring vexatious accusations against potential victims; it virtually obliges the police to detain an innocent person on spurious grounds; and it recognizes for judicial purposes a standard of evidence so vague and so lacking in objectivity that a fair trial would be impossible.

CONCLUSION

The real hate crime – which no-one wants to talk about – is the grievous assault on the Irish people by its own government. Leave the 1989 Act as it is. The proposed new legislation will do serious harm to Ireland and the Irish people.
